APPENDIX II.

Copy of the Report.

Water supply for drinking and soaking paddy is from a well. There is a lot of putrifying water algae in the well and this has to be removed completely. The well may be chlorinated periodically or may be covered over by a suitable and movable cover to prevent dust entering into the well from the rice mills.

Supply of drinking water for the use of the operatives is quite inadequate and the present method of storing is faulty. A dust proof cistern of requisite capacity (a gallon per head per day) fitted with a tap at the bottom for delivery may be mounted on a 3 feet stand and located in a sanitary central place. This cistern must be cleaned thoroughly every day before refilling.

The latrines must be disinfected daily as they are very close to the working yard.

The inside walls of the oil factory should be well cleaned and that of the rice factory thoroughly dust-brushed and hot-lime washed at least once in every half-year.

The operatives should not be allowed to spit in just on the outside of the paddy drying platforms. Suitable receptacles for this purpose at convenient and harmless places have necessarily to be provided forthwith.
